Branding Doesn't End With the Frame

A private label frame creates something patients can't find anywhere else. Premium packaging reinforces that message every time the frame is presented, purchased, and worn.

From the shopping bag to the consumer box, soft pouch, and cleaning cloth, every touchpoint becomes part of your brand experience. It elevates the perceived value of the eyewear, strengthens patient loyalty, and turns a simple purchase into something memorable.

Patients don't just show off their new glasses. They show the entire experience to friends, family, and co-workers. When every detail carries your name, your practice becomes the brand they remember.

Because true private branding isn't just what's on the frame. It's everything that surrounds it.

Luxury Is In The Details

Every frame in the Black Collection is crafted using premium materials and construction methods typically found in eyewear selling for significantly more.

Thick, high-grade acetate provides rich color depth and a hand-polished finish. Riveted hinges, premium core wires, and carefully designed temple details add strength, comfort, and refinement.

The result is eyewear that looks luxurious, feels substantial, and is built to last.

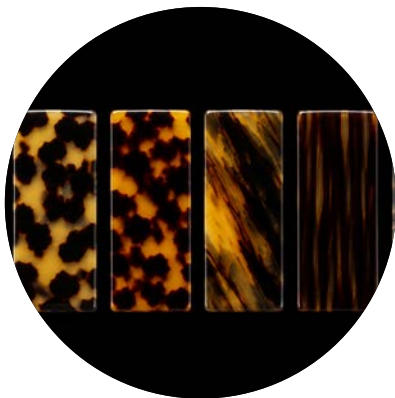

Many designer brands charge three to four times more while offering no better quality.

Black delivers luxury craftsmanship without the luxury-brand markup.
